What are the special requirements regarding American Indian children?

When five percent or more of the center's child enrollment consists of American Indian children, you must develop social service resource and staff training programs designed to meet the special needs of such children through coordination with tribal, Indian health service, and Bureau of Indian Affairs social service staff, and appropriate urban Indian and Alaska native consultants.

If you have more than five percent Native American children enrolled at your center, you must provide staff training and have resources available. Your licensor can provide you with more information for meeting this requirement.

The Regulations

You must report suspected child abuse, neglect or exploitation to Child Protective Services (CPS) or your local law enforcement agency immediately. If the suspected child abuse or neglect involves you or your staff, you must also inform your licensor.

Chapter 26.44 of the RCW describes the rules and procedures for dealing with the abuse of children, adult dependents or persons with developmental disabilities. In part, it states:

“When any licensed or certified child care provider or their employee has reasonable cause to believe that a child... has suffered abuse or neglect, he or she shall report such incident, or cause a report to be made, to the proper law enforcement agency or to the department as provided in RCW 26.44.040.”

The RCW further specifies:

- ◆ What possible actions CPS may take following a report
- ◆ That you are immune from any civil or criminal liabilities if you report a case of suspected child abuse in good faith

- ◆ That, as part of a suspected abuse investigation, CPS has the right to interview the child in your center and look at any of your files, and
- ◆ That you can be charged with a gross misdemeanor or if you do NOT report a suspected case of child abuse, neglect, or exploitation.

Definitions of Abuse and Neglect:

- ◆ Inflicting physical injury on a child by other than accidental means, causing death, disfigurement, skin bruising, impairment of physical or emotional health or loss or impairment of any bodily function
- ◆ Creating a substantial risk of physical harm to a child's bodily functioning
- ◆ Committing or allowing to be committed any sexual offense against a child as defined in the criminal code, or intentionally touching, either directly or through clothing, the genitals, anus or breasts of a child for other than hygiene or child care purposes
- ◆ Committing acts which are cruel or inhumane, regardless of observable injury (such acts may include, but are not limited to, instances of extreme discipline demonstrating a disregard for a child's pain and/or mental suffering)
- ◆ Assaulting or criminally mistreating a child as defined by the criminal code
- ◆ Failing to provide food, shelter, clothing, supervision or health care necessary to a child's health or safety,
- ◆ Engaging in actions or omissions resulting in injury to, or creating a substantial risk to, the physical or mental health or development of a child, and
- ◆ Failing to take reasonable steps to prevent the occurrence of the above.

Not all acts of abuse involve physical harm to a child. Mental cruelty, threats, and failure to adequately supervise children are also types of child abuse or neglect.

If You Suspect a Child Is a Victim of Abuse or Neglect

You are in a unique position to recognize abusive situations in the early stages and to take actions that can end the abuse of children. You must contact CPS if you even suspect that certain injuries or bruises may not be accidental. You must contact CPS if you see signs of emotional or sexual abuse or physical neglect. Even if you have made a report to CPS about a particular child earlier, you must report each new injury or incident. The phone number for CPS should be among the emergency numbers posted by each telephone in your center.

In most circumstances you should not inform parents you are making a CPS report. However, you must inform parents in your parent policy handbook that you are a mandated reporter and that you will report any suspicion of child abuse, neglect, or exploitation. Do not attempt to interview the child or to manage the situation yourself. Both interviewing and investigating are the responsibility of CPS. The pamphlet, "Protecting the Abused and Neglected Child" DSHS 22-163(X)" outlines indicators of physical abuse and neglect, emotional abuse and neglect, and sexual abuse. Your licenser can supply you with a copy of the pamphlet which offers more detailed information.

Calling CPS does not mean CPS will actually investigate the family. A trained intake worker screens incoming calls to determine if the case requires further investigation. This intake worker can also answer any questions you have about how to respond to a certain situation. Their response is both child-focused and family-oriented. Their purpose is to safeguard the child while helping ease the circumstances and behavior patterns causing the abusive situation.

If CPS conducts an investigation you must be cooperative. CPS personnel have the right to interview children in your center, with or without you or the parents present.
